College Offers Night Course In Automation

Automation science and laboratory, a newly established course in the automation and the electro-mechanical curriculum, will be offered in the evening division at Harbor College in the fall semester according to an announcement recently by George Rainey, chairman of the applied technology division.

The automation science class will meet Wednesday nights from 6:30 to 9:30; the automation laboratory class will be held on Friday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 beginning the week of Sept. 17. A prerequisite for the course is concurrent enrollment in a basic math class or equivalent. The instructor will be Kenneth E. Berry of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

The two classes teach the basic scientific principles that are used by technicians in industry. Technical terminology as used in practical application of automation technology is included. Persons preparing for technical employment will want to include this course in their program. The laboratory section of the course gives practical experience in hydraulic systems, pneumatic systems, optics, and heat transfer.

Registration for the course is by appointment, with a Sept. 7 deadline for requesting an application for admission. Applicants for admission and requests for permits are available at the admissions office of the college.

"These automation courses were established to meet the growing need for fundamental information in the automation field," stated Rainey "and should be taken by all persons who are starting a program in any of the technical majors of the College."
